

SElect summer series

by characterplus

Building a sense of community in a school setting can be a challenge. Culture and climate can vary from each classroom, in the hallways, in the cafeteria and at recess. Using a framework of restorative practices is a useful tool to begin creating spaces embedded with empathy, compassion and opportunities to be seen and heard. This session will focus on the fundamentals of restorative practices as a proactive tool for building school communities, and ultimately as a tool for addressing harm.
